When applying, it is necessary for applicants to supply personal information (name, telephone number, address, etc.) Please be aware that failure to do so will mean an application cannot be processed. Personal information supplied will be used only for inquiries regarding submitted works, notification of selection outcome, or publicity and information about the Kobe Biennale, and not for any other purposes. Responsibility for oversight of the personal information collected will be undertaken by the Office of the Organization Committee for Kobe Biennale (inside the Cultural Affairs Division, International Affairs, Culture and Tourism Bureau, City of KOBE).

2. Copyrights to submitted works, etc.

- Materials submitted (application form, work proposals, sample images, photos of scale models, photos of past work) may be used to publicize the Biennale (in pamphlets, on the web, etc.) without financial compensation.
- Materials submitted become the property of the Biennale organizers, and may be saved or disposed of at their discretion. They will not be returned.
- Copyrights to the work submitted belong to the applicant. However, the Organization Committee for Kobe Biennale and the City of Kobe reserve the right to use the work to present or introduce the Biennale, as well as for related publicity and announcements. In concrete terms, this refers to the exhibition of the work itself, as well as the use of photos or moving images of the work on the official website, various pamphlets, and serve as a record of the event (including film or video documentation).
- Works which violate any laws, contracts, or public order and standards of decency will not be accepted.
- Applicants are responsible for guaranteeing that work submitted does not violate any rights of a third person, and if by any chance a complaint is submitted, applicants are responsible for resolving the dispute themselves.
- If application forms or submitted materials are found to be incomplete, false, or found to violate rules or cause other problems, prizewinning status may be revoked.
- All possible steps will be taken to ensure proper exhibition and handling of the submitted works, but in the event of accidents, breakage or other damage during the exhibition period, the organizers will accept no responsibility.
